By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Author of "The Fighting Chance," "Iole," Etc.

Illustrated. 12mo, ornamental cloth, $1.50

This book treats, in Mr. Chambers' peculiar, imaginative style, of the mysterious, the unexplained, and the occult in everyday contemporary affairs. A man who has returned from the Far East to his home in America for a short stay, and who has gained great knowledge of the occult sciences in the East, is giving a dinner, preparatory to his departure, to a number of old friends. He gives out a hint of what is going to happen to each of the men there, and the innuendoes and suggestions he makes so interest the men at dinner that one of their number is appointed to write down what does really happen to them, and they agree to give him the information. There follows a strange account of the experiences of the different men. Each of the accounts makes a record of some hypnotic, occult, supernatural experience, and the whole book makes reading more or less of the type of "Iole." It is beautifully illustrated by A. B. Wenzell, Howard Chandler Christy, and Henry Hutt.

OVERHEARD IN THE BOOKSHOP

"Have you read 'The Lonely Lady of Grosvenor Square' by Mrs. De La Pasture?" said the pretty girl behind the counter, taking out the book with one hand and tucking away a rebellious curl with the other.

"No? Well really it is a charming little story. Not exciting to be sure, for it just carries one along like a rubber-tired buggy on a Sunday afternoon. It is all about the kind of gentle folk who never seem to come in contact with poverty or wretchedness, but who are as fine and real as point lace and old china. Then there is the dearest love story in it, that would warm the heart of even a confirmed old bachelor, and while it deals with one real sorrow, it is such a natural and to-be-expected sorrow that it only serves to make a contrast to all the delightful things that happen."

"I read it only a few days ago," she added shyly, "and it made me forget some of the bothers and worries. It is like the fairy tales one used to read. You live in kind of an enchanted atmosphere whenever you think about it."

has proved one of the great fiction successes of the year. To celebrate the 7th printing of this delightful story we have issued a poster by Sewell Collins, drawn in this artist's most attractive style. This poster, in three colors, black, a fresh green and red, will be very useful to the trade in augmenting the sales of this already successful novel. Orders for The Lonely Lady should be placed promptly, as the demand for each edition has proved greatly in excess of the immediate supply.

"This story, concerning Hilma, a princess royal, is a story of adventure—lively adventures, life, action, vivid happenings, stirring romance, and vigorous excitement keep one's interest at fever heat. It is unusually picturesque, dramatic, sparkling. They who love stories of adventure should not fail to read this tale of 'Hilma.'"

-Grand Rapids Herald.

"The story is of the 'Pickup, never put down till the end kind,' warranted to displace the most obstinate case of worry or ennui."

CAUSE OF FREEDOM

By ARTHUR W. MARCHMONT

Author of "By Right of Sword," "A Dash for a Throne"
"A Courier of Fortune," etc.

MR. MARCHMONT here uses the thrilling events of present-day Russia to weave his romance upon. It is the kind of book of which you read "just one more chapter" until you have finished it.

A young tourist, following the lure of a charming pair of eyes, tries to get a young girl out of Russia despite the vigilance of the police. Together they thread the maze of countersigns and false countersigns, and evade the brutality of police and peasantry, and the fury of the mob. There are Cupid's pitfalls, too, into which drop a bristling Russian official and a revolutionary dreamer, as well as the hero.

THE DISEASE OF THE ACE

By C. W. SALEEBY, M.D., F.R.S.

Author of "The Cycle of Life," "Evolution the Master Key," "Heredity," "Ethics," etc.

THE action of worry upon our vitality and power to resist disease; upon digestion and sleep; and upon our semi-automatic powers, such as mental and physical skill, is shown in a lucid and charming style. Dr. Saleeby is so far from being a "faddist," that he pleads for a happy ignorance of physiology in some cases, where it will exempt people from worry.

Dr. Saleeby also shows the physical and mental causes and cures of worry, and its relation to the drug and drink habits, to religion, to the bringing up of children, and to success in life.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish on May 3 a new book by Robert W. Chambers, entitled "The Tree of Heaven." The story treats, in the author's peculiar, imaginative style, of the mysterious, the unexplained and the occult in everyday contemporary affairs. A. B. Wenzell, Howard Chandler Christy and Henry Hutt have illustrated the text.

THE G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY announce "The End of the Game," by Arthur Hornblow, who wrote the novel "The Lion tion of agricultural aristocracies."

and the Mouse," now in its fiftieth thousand. "The End of the Game" was booked for March issue, but advance orders, far exceeding the first edition, made it necessary to postpone publication until a month later.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have just added to the Muses' Library "The Poems of Thomas Lovell Beddoes," edited, with an introduction, by Ramsay Colles; to the Universal Library "The Principles of Human Knowledge," by Bishop Berkeley, edited by Collins Simon, and "The Gentle Life;" and to College Monographs "St. John's, Cambridge," and "Magdalen, Oxford."

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will publish in this country Dr. C. W. Saleeby's new work on "Worry, the Disease of the Age," which Cassell & Company bring out only in England. As already noted, the author in this work demonstrates the futility of worry and its relations to disease, work, and the religious life, and shows the affinity between worry and physical disease. He also deals with the evil effects of drugs, drink and the abuse of hypnotics and narcotics. The book will be ready for general publication on April 27, Doubleday, Page & Co. will publish on the 25th inst. "Water Wonders," by Mrs. Jean M. Thompson, the well-known magazine writer and author of nature studies for young people, who in her new book treats of the formation of snow and ice crystals. Mrs. Thompson has been aided in accumulating her material by Professor Wilson A. Bentley, the well-known meteorologist, writer and lecturer. Publication date of Commander Peary's book, "Nearest the Pole," has been delayed until April 27 to admit of the addition of valuable data.

Dopp, Mead & Company publish this week "The Culture of Justice, a Mode of Education and of Social Reform," by Patterson du Bois, who wrote "Beckonings from Little Hands," "The Point of Contact in Teaching" and "Fireside Child-Study." All these works are on the same general theme, and this last one expands particularly the doctrine that human injustice lies at the bottom of most of our social and personal troubles, both with grown-ups and children. They have also just ready Maurice Maeterlinck's "The Measure of the Hours," another volume of the characteristically mystic and gentle philosophy of the author of "Wisdom and Destiny."

G. P. PUTNAM'S Sons have just ready the new book by Arthur Christopher Benson, entitled "Beside Still Waters," in which the author aims to win men back to the joys of peaceful work, simplicity, friendship and quiet helpfulness. The book is also a protest against the rule or tyranny ot convention, the appetite for luxury, power, excitement and strong sensation. They will bring out in the near future "The Greatness and Decline of Rome," by Guglielmo Ferrero, translated by Alfred E. Zimmern, of Oxford, a work designed by the author to prove that Rome's career was in reality due to a transformation continually re-enacted in societies large and small—"the growth of a nationalist and industrial democracy on the ruins of a federa-

"Tippoo Tib" was the nickname of Hamed bin Muhammed, an Arab trader of Zanzibar, with a strong mixture of negro blood in his veins. In his many expeditions in search of slaves and ivory, in what is now the territory of the Congo Free State, he made some of the first African explorations. In one of his journeys he met Livingstone. He began these journeys about 1867, and continued them for fifteen years. He also met Cameron and Stanley; the latter he guided for a part of his journey towards the end of 1876. He escorted Wissmann on a part of his journey to the coast. He was Stanley's guide again in 1882. His adventurous life is rich in information of the people of East Africa, or the Congo, fifteen or twenty years back. He died in 1905 after the original edition of this work was published in 1903.

Light." N. Y., Harper, 1907. c. 6+344 p. D. cl., $1.50.

By the author of "Dr. Luke of the 'Labrador.' " The story tells of Dannie, "Tom Callaway's son," and the man who cares for him, cunning, devoted, irascible old Nick Top, whose sole object in life is to make a gentleman of "Dannie." There is a mystery about the boy and Nick's money resources, which only receives explanation towards the end. When "Dannie" learns the true story of his father's life he refuses to profit by another penny, and begins to earn his living like other men of the coast. There is a dramatic episode in which a girl he loves figures. She is in great peril and Dannie puts out to sea in the "Shining Light" in a blinding storm of snow to find her. The delineation of character is quaintly humorous. humorous.

pose. The issue for 1907 has been prepared on the same lines, but revised in all its details, statistics and information of every sort being brought up to date. Some articles found of little value have been omitted, while others have been re-written. The various mission fields and societies in all parts of the world are described, and many miscellaneous notes included. The book is thoroughly undenominational in character, dealing with both Protestant and Roman Catholic missions.

By the author of "The East Africa protectorate." The letters here republished consist of contributions written for the Westminster Gasette during a brief visit to China and Japan in the summer and autumn of 1906, together with some additions. The main object of the author's journey was to obtain some practical knowledge of the languages and creeds of the Far East and, in particular, to study the curious development which Buddhism has undergone in those countries. The present book is merely his impressions. He hopes to publish the result of his investigations at a future day.

  Essays which appeared in great part in the Englishman of Calcutta, in support of "an imperial commercial federation of the whole British empire," in which India is to be second only to the United Kingdom. Sir Roper believes the economic value of imperial preference in Indian trade to be very great, in that India and the United Kingdom are almost exactly complementary, constituting a self-sufficing commercial and industrial unit. The effect of the preference is considered on Indian exports and imports, patriotism, and on foreign countries. Author is Fellow of the University of Calcutta.

With picturesque anecdote and description is told the life of the famous Portuguese navigator. The voyage that was to give him enduring fame is related in detail. He found the Strait of Magellan and discovered the island of Guam and the Philippines. It was at the Philippines he met an untimely fate, one small ship of the brave little fleet with which he set sail from Spain going on its way and completing the circumnavigation of the globe.

The salient points in the history of the settlement of Virginia at Jamestown in 1607 are most interestingly given, with an account of the period immediately following it. Many old works are quoted from, giving in the quaint languages of the time the facts and legends connected with the early days of Virginia and the famous names that helped make its history. This work is especially timely in view of the Jamestown tri-centennial Exposition this year. Mrs. Pryor is the author of "The mother of Washington and her times" and other books.

It is the legend that "the golden hawk"—if there is such a bird—is distinguished among his kind by the love that drives him to fly straight into the heart of the sun. He pierces at once to the heart of his desire and allows nothing to call a halt. Of this nature was Trillon, who attained the name of "the golden hawk" in a little corner of Provence, where he met his fate in an innkeeper's daughter. All the poetry of the land of Mistral and Daudet breathes in the story of the machinations of a mother and a priest finally conquered by "the golden hawk," whose sure success in all was almost his undoing.

Traces the art of copper-plate engraving in England from its introduction in the middle of the 16th to its climax at the end of the 18th century. The print-collector has not been in the author's mind, hence technicalities have been ignored; inasmuch as Mr. Salaman regards old engravings as a means of visualizing the past. Line engraving, mezzotint and stipple engraving are all treated. Illustrations are reproductions of the best work of the artists. English bibliography of copper-plate engraving (2 p.). Index.

By the author of "The village blacksmith." A story in which the characters are chiefly Friends or Ouakers. The scene shifts from Australia to England. The plot is based upon a most unfair will, made by a rich Australian, disinheriting his daughter Naomi unless she marries a cousin she has never seen. If the cousin refuses to marry her he forfeits the money. A plot is entered into by Naomi and her companion, a pretty, penniless girl, to deceive this cousin and have him refuse her. Naomi is a religious enthusiast, finally entering a sisterhood of the Catholic church.

Divinity students in Edinburgh in the days when Martineau and Newman, Darwin and Huxley were teaching the world to think and to grow, are the chief characters. Honest doubt and honest faith are shown in equally honest light. The little Scotch Presbyterian community is pictured with art. Catholic and Protestant arguments are fairly stated, and the individual character that led to "growth" is impartially reflected. For a time the scene shifts to Rome and Florence, with understanding of the art and religion these cities stand for. A young rich woman, devoted to helping her fellowmen, and a successful actress play the leading woman parts. A plea for fearlessness in seeking "growth" through carefully digested truth.

Trevelyan, G: Macaulay. Garibaldi's defence of the Roman republic; with seven maps and numerous il. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1907. 15+377 p. por. O. cl., *$2 net.

A graphic account of the siege of Rome in 1849 by the French and its defence by the Italian patriot, Giuseppe Garibaldi. A brief sketch of Garibaldi's life precedes the account, with the details of his participation in other revolutionary movements having for their ultimate object the unity and freedom of Italy. Mr. Trevelyan is author of "England in the age of Wycliffe" and "England under the Stuarts," etc. Appendices contain explanatory notes. List of printed matter and mss. consulted by the author 19 p.). July 4, 1907, will be the centenary of Garibaldi's birth.

Trobridge, G: Emanuel Swedenborg: life, teachings and influence. N. Y., Frederick Warne & Co., [1907.] 8+140+12 p.

O. pap., 25 c.

"The present biography differs from former ones in that more particulars are given of Swedenborg's early life, his travels, personal characteristics and political activities. The aim has been to present a portrait of the whole man, and not to dwell too exclusively on one aspect of his life's work. By most persons Swedenborg is regarded as a dreamy mystic, instead of the real, live, practical man that he actually was. This little sketch may help remove that impression."—Preface.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 20, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the Publishers' Weekly solely for their information. The record of New Publications of the Publishers' Weekly is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE PICTURE POSTCARD TRADE.

A YEAR ago conservative observers predicted that the picture postcard craze was declining, if not actually reaching its end. On the other hand, there were those who insisted that the public in this country is only experiencing the premonitory symptoms of "postcarditis," and that the actual fever is still to set in and run its course, which might take ten years or longer. We are inclined to take sides with the optimistic party, and, though it were rash to predict the length of its run, are convinced that those dealers who labored under the impression that the postcard would soon run its course and be a thing of the past were mistaken in their supposition. It took this country a long time to fall a victim to the craze, but we are catching it, and in another twelvemonth will suffer from as acute a form of "postcarditis" as exists anywhere.

Instead of declining in popularity the postcard trade in some localities has become almost the one thing that attracts custom to the bookstores. Indeed, the aggregate of this business is enormous. There are no official statistics on the subject, but all estimates run into the millions. During the Christmas week last year in one day 50,000 souvenir postcards, by close count, passed through the Albany (N. Y.) post-office. A man who last summer started a little booth at one of the seaside resorts near New York City is said to have sold on an average of $45 worth of souvenir postcards a day. It is estimated by several American printers of postcards that there are now 80,000 stores and booths handling these cards, as against 100 three years ago. According to another estimate made by the same printers there was spent during October, November and December last year not less than $200,000 a day in this country for picture postcards, and that at least one person in every eight in the United States buys one of these cards every day in the year. A Chicago printer of picture postals advertises that for one publisher he printed 4,000,000 cards in five months, and that for another publisher he is turning out 50,000 cards every day of the week. The official estimate of the number of picture postcards that passed through the British Post-Office last year is 500,000,000, and the probable value of them was about £1,000,000. The revenue to the post-office, it is claimed, was over £2,000,000.

For several years there has been a picture postcard congress in Leipzig, the original home of the souvenir card, that has been attended by visitors from every civilized country in the world, with considerable profit to all concerned. The picture postal has even an "organ," The Postal Monthly, published in Chicago.

Whether the figures quoted above fall short of the actual output and sale by a million or more matters little; the fact is that the picture postcard business is stupendous, is growing and will grow so long as booksellers and stationers will cultivate and nurse it. Towards this end it will not only be necessary to make a special feature and display of this line of goods; it will also be necessary to originate a large part of it. That is, the dealer, even in the smallest towns, in order to take the fullest advantage of this class of business, must hunt out with his camera the scenes and objects which make his locality attractive, historic or noteworthy, and make special features of them on his own picture postal cards. Indeed, the possibilities of the camera in this direction are practically without limit, and the more one dealer differentiates his line from that of another dealer, in fact the more individual he can make his own line the greater will be his chances of making sales. During the vacation season there is a large demand for local views, and the dealer must be equipped to supply them even if but few are called for.

A noticeable feature of the trade is that the public wants the best cards and is quick to discern real merit. An artistic card, whether plain or colored, can be made at almost as little cost as the common card daubed with crude colors, and will command a better price.

THE picture postcard business has received a powerful impetus by the action of the postoffice department in permitting writing on half of the face of the cards, so that the picture may remain intact. When the fad started abroad the postal authorities quickly recognized the opportunities of the revenue which it afforded. By agreement between the representatives of the various foreign postal departments it was permitted to the sender to use the left half of the face of the card, as well as the entire back if desired, for the message, reserving only the right half of the face under the postage stamp for the address. This was found to be sufficient, and the generosity on the part of the postal authorities doubtless encouraged the use of thousands of cards that otherwise would not have been demanded. The Universal Postal Convention at Rome last year endorsed the picture postcard as an aid to business and provided for universal admission to the mails after October 1, 1907, "of postcards bearing written messages upon the left half of the front of the cards."

In publishing the action of the convention Postmaster-General Cortelyou also issued an order which provided that "On and after March 1, 1907, such cards bearing a written message upon the left half of the front, the right half being reserved for the address and postmark, when fully prepaid by postage stamps at the rate applicable to postcards, shall be admitted both to the domestic and international mails of this country and treated as postcards."

The postal authorities have also issued regulations providing that private postcards must be made of an unfolded piece of cardboard, not exceeding three and nine-sixteenths by five and nine-sixteenths inches, nor less than two and three-fourths by four inches. They must in form and in quality and weight of paper be substantially like the government postcard. They may be of any color, not interfering with a legible address and postmark. Very thin sheets of paper may be attached to them on condition that they completely adhere to the card.

Cards bearing particles of glass, mica, sand, tinsel or other similar substances will not be accepted for mailing, except when inclosed in envelopes. The reason for this exclusion is said to be that the particles come off and injure the health.

From all indications the picture postcard and its twin-sister, the postcard album, now turned out in all grades at from five cents to that many dollars, a most profitable side-line, have come to stay for some years to come, and it is therefore of importance for dealers who have not yet developed this department of their business to begin now and stock up for the coming season, and to keep closely informed as to the many lines in the market, imported as well as of the home product. To get this information and to keep in touch with the ever-increasing supply and the fluctuations in demand will well repay the dealer who devotes to it the necessary care and time.

THE Post-Office Department has given notice of an amendment in the postal convention with Canada which becomes operative from May 8, making the postage on second-class matter, that is, periodicals in bulk mailed in this country for delivery in Canada or mailed in Canada for delivery in this country, 4 cents per pound. Hitherto the one cent per pound bulk rate in the United States had covered delivery in Canada, and a half-cent per pound bulk rate had covered delivery in the United States, with the result of inviting to Canada for publication there, because of the lower rate and still more because of the absence of red tape restrictions in Canada, periodicals naturally belonging on this side the border. To correct this abuse the pendulum has been swung to the other extreme.

AN INTERNATIONAL BOOK AND PAPER EXPOSITION.

From July 21 to November 1 of this year there will be held at Paris an international exposition which, instead of covering every phase of human activity, will deal exclusively with books, paper and the allied industries. The Grand Palais on the Champs Elysees, the show building par excellence of Paris, and in fact of all Europe, has been selected as a fitting centre for this specialized exposition.

Authorization for the exposition was granted by ministerial decree July 20, 1906. It will be held under the patronage of the Minister of Public Instruction and Fine Arts, the Minister of Commerce and Industry, the Under Secretary of State for the Fine Arts and the Under Secretary of State for the Department of Posts and Telegraphs.

The scope of the exposition is to be very broad, and is but roughly indicated by the following classification: Paper—rag, pulp and other basic products, pasteboard and cardboard, papier maché, printed products and wall paper. Presses and processes of printing—composing machines and type casting. Binding—stitching, tooling and designs. Printing—from copper plate, from type and lithography. Photography—cameras, plates, prints and supplies, half-tones, photogravures and postal cards. Publishers and books, musical instruments, engraving, daily and periodical press and historical exhibits. Publicity—posters, advertising, Governmental bureaus, education and social economy. Libraries—furnishing, lighting and heating. Office furnishing—desks and filing cases, letter paper and leather fittings. Optical instruments—lenses.

The space set aside for American exhibits is located on the main floor, in a most advantageous position, the units to be devoted to American book publishers, newspapers and periodicals being in the immediate vicinity of the space already allotted to the great French daily, weekly and monthly publications.

The American Commissioners have been granted space in addition for mechanical exhibits, such as type-setting and type-casting devices, presses, paper-cutting machines, etc., which can best be exhibited in motion. This space is so located with reference to the exhibits of well-known French and other makers of presses as to insure the attention of all visitors to the American machinery exhibits.

The terms have been so arranged that the charges will include not only the space required in each case and the personal representation, but also the partitions, shelves, cases, frames and fittings of every kind, as well as the freight on exhibits to and from Paris, and in fact all ordinary expenses. Save in exceptional cases, there will be no outlay whatever required beyond the first fee for exhibition.

For the first time in exposition management a large section has been set aside for advertising and publicity, so as to show how American industrialists bring their wares to the notice of the buying public, whether by means of posters, placards, books, pamphlets, circulars or any other means. This affords the industrialist an opportunity of gaining world publicity.

Applications for particulars and space should be addressed to Dr. William H. Tolman, American Commissioner General, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York City.

A PRACTICAL GUIDE FOR AUTHORS.

The literature of "guides" to would-be authors grows apace; yet there seems to be ample room for so useful a manual as "A Practical Guide for Authors in Their Relations with Publishers and Printers," prepared by William Stone Booth, and published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. Mr. Booth, through his connections with the literary departments of the Macmillan Company and Houghton, Mifflin & Co., has had excellent training and ample opportunity to gather information on the "questions and difficulties which may arise during negotiations for the sale of a manuscript to a publisher, or in the relations which exist between a publisher and an author after a work has been accepted, and while it is being printed and published;" and his training has been on such broad lines that he is enabled to treat his subjects impartially—with regard to the interests of the authors quite as much as those of the publishers.

Mr. Booth gives concise directions as to how manuscript or "copy" should be prepared, following this with a chapter of advice on pruning and improving the written work. Next follows a chapter on how to offer a manuscript to a publisher; then one on advance royalties, as to which the author is inclined to repeat Punch's advice to the young man about to marry—"Don't." Mr. Booth's chapter on "The Literary Agent" may leave a raw recruit in the ranks of authors very much in doubt as to the usefulness of the agent, but his remarks will be recognized as sane by those who have been through the mill. The chapter on Copy-right is a trifle abrupt and insufficient considering that the book is intended for those who are supposed to have no knowledge whatever as to how to proceed in the matter. The remarks on "The British Market" and on "Serial Rights" cover those subjects satisfactorily. The chapter on "Agreements and Contracts" should have reiterated the wisdom of providing for serial rights, even if it was not possible to include such a clause in the sample form of agreement quoted. The chapters on "Cover Designs," "How a Publisher May Be Helped by an Author," "Advertising and Descriptive Circulars," "Press Copies" and "Proof Reading" are full of useful information and suggestions. The work concludes with rules for spelling and punctuation— American, English, French and German, hints on the division of Latin and Greek words, and an index to the whole book.

THE CONCORDANCE SOCIETY.

The Concordance Society, originating in a suggestion made by Professor George Herbert Palmer, of Harvard University, was organized on December 28, 1906, during the session of the Modern Language Association at New Haven, Conn. The purposes of the society are "to provide subventions toward the publication of such concordances and word indexes to English writers as shall be considered sufficiently meritorious and necessary; to formulate plans for the compilation of such works, and to assist intending compilers of such works with suggestions and advice." Membership fees are $5 a year, due May I. As the society will disband if a hundred members are not secured by May I, applications for membership are desired, and may be sent to any one of the officers, as follows: President, Albert E. Cook, Yale University; secretary, Charles G. Osgood, Jr., Princeton University; treasurer, Curtis H. Page, Columbia University; executive committee: the officers of the society, with Charles M. Hodell, Woman's College, Baltimore, and Albert H. Tolman, University of Chicago.

A STORY WHICH FIVE PUBLISHERS ACCEPTED.

THE public is familiar with anecdotes of books which were rejected again and again by publishers, and then after the third or fourth trial were accepted and made great hits. An anecdote of another kind related to Myra Kelly, whose first short story was sent simultaneously to four magazines, and then, much to the author's astonishment, was accepted by all four.

A recent occurrence, recalling in some ways Miss Kelly's experience, relates to a story by Margaret Hannis, entitled "The Emancipation of Miss Susana." Having sent it to the magazine of largest circulation in the country, Miss Hannis received a letter accepting it on condition that she would shorten it. Unwilling to do this, she tried another famous magazine, but obtained the same response—acceptance if shortened. On making a third attempt, she again got a request for condensation with a promise to publish.

In trying for the fourth time she reluctantly shortened the story, and then sent it to another prominent magazine, which replied that it would publish the story as received. Meanwhile the story in its original long form had been submitted by the author to the Funk & Wagnalls Company as a book in their Hour Glass Series. The same mail which brought from the fourth magazine an acceptance of it in its short form, brought from the Funk & Wagnalls Company an acceptance in its long form. As Miss Hannis from the start had desired publication without condensation, she at once closed a contract for its addition to the Hour Glass Series. "The Emancipation of Miss Susana" will be published in the early autumn.

POSTAL MATTERS.

POSTAGE RATE ON SECOND-CLASS MATTER TO CANADA.

To Publishers and News Agents:

Your attention is invited to the following order of the Postmaster-General, relative to the postage rate applicable to second-class matter addressed for delivery in Canada on and after May 3, 1907:

OFFICE OF POSTMASTER-GENERAL, WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11, 1907. Order No. 268.

Order No. 268.

Pursuant to an agreement between this Department and the Post Office Department of the Dominion of Canada, concluded in this city on the 1st instant, amending Section "c" of Article 1 of the Postal Convention of January, 1888, now in force between the United States and Canada, so as to read as follows: "(c) The classification of, and the rates of postage and the registration fee to be levied and collected upon, mail matter originating in either country and addressed to the other, shall be in accordance with the domestic laws and regulations of the country of origin; provided, that the rates of postage and registration fee so levied shall not exceed in either country the minimum rates of postage and registration fee so levied shall not exceed in either country the minimum rates of postage and registration fee prescribed for articles of a like nature by the Universal Postal Convention in force for the time being; and provided further that the postage applicable to second-class matter in each country addressed for delivery in the other shall be one cent for each four (4) ounces or fraction of four (4) ounces, calculated on the weight of each package and prepaid by means of stamps affixed; and provided further, that when separately-addressed copies intended for delivery at one post office are enclosed under one wrapper bearing the address of such office, the individual copies shall be delivered without further charge to the respective addressees, the amount of postage thereon at the above rate being affixed to the bulk package"—

It is hereby ordered that, commencing on the eighth day of May, 1907, the postage rate applicable in the United States to "second-class matter," addressed for delivery in Canada shall be one cent for each four (4) ounces or fraction of four (4) ounces, calculated on the weight of each package and prepaid by means of postage stamps affixed.

Postmasters will cause due notice of the foregoing to be taken at their offices; and will see to it that the change is brought to the a

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS. THE AMERICAN BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIA-TION ON THE CHANGED PLAN OF THE PUBLISHERS.

To the members of the American Booksellers' Assoc.

GENTLEMEN: The new rules of the American Publishers' Association, now in force, seem to give general satisfaction, and from all indications protection and the net system are on firmer ground than ever before. individual arrangement that each publisher makes with his customer removes any objection that could be advanced against the old system, while it makes the legal position of the publisher absolutely sound. Any radical change in any system has a tendency to disturb conditions, and when the new rules of the Publishers' Association were made necessary many considered the action a backward step, and one that would work against the reform movement. But just the opposite has proven to be the result. The ranks of the publishers are firmer now than ever before, and the outlook is good in every direction.

It now rests with the members of this Association and with the booktrade at large to give to the American Publishers' Association firm and loyal support.

The "terms of sale" that have been sent out by the prominent publishers are broad and fair, and contain nothing that could be construed as a hardship to any dealer; the only possible regret that the booksellers can have is that the publishers did not take this opportunity of raising the minimum price of fiction from $1.08 to $1.18. However, we will hope this is among some of the good things yet to

We take this opportunity of announcing to the trade at large the date of our annual convention. The convention will open at the Hotel Victoria, at Broadway and Twenty-seventh Street, New York City, on Tuesday morning, May 14, at ten o'clock. The convention will be in session two days. Papers on topics of vital interest to booksellers will be read by several members of the Association and will, it is hoped, be followed by general discussions.

Doubleday, Page & Co. have extended an invitation to all the members attending the convention to visit their extensive publishing and manufacturing plant in a body on the afternoon of May 14. An interesting and pleasant visit is assured.

The Baker & Taylor Company have most kindly offered their offices as a headquarters for the members, and will have desks especially for their use, where members may attend to their correspondence, make arrangekeep copies of second-class publications for ments for meeting friends, and, in general, Canada separate from those which are mailed make themselves at home there. The wholesale and retail book and stationery trades and the various trade journals, also, extend a cordial invitation to the visiting members.

The entire booktrade, including publishers, booksellers, book manufacturers, travelling men, and all others in any way interested in the book business are most cordially invited to attend the sessions of the convention. From present indications the convention will be the most successful in the history of the Association. A large attendance is looked for and it is hoped that much good will result from the meeting.

The banquet will be held on Wednesday evening, May 15, at the rooms of the Aldine Association. This promises to be a splendid Association. This promises to be a splendid success, and from present indications banquet tickets will be away above par in a very short The committee announces a brilliant list of speakers who have signified their acceptance. It includes Bishop Ethelbert Talbot, author of "My People of the Plains;" Gelett Burgess, author of "Are You a Bromide?," "The White Cat," etc.; R. F. Outcault, the creator of "Buster Brown;" F. R. Chapman, author of "Bird Life," etc.; W. F. Hornaday, author of "Camp Fires in the Canadian Rockies," and Louis Joseph Vance, author of "The Brass Bowl." Mark Twain has promised to attend provided he is able to return in time from his trip South. Arthur Stringer, author of "The Wire Tappers," and Professor Wickes, of Syracuse, N. Y., have also promised to be present. The tickets at $2.50, being 50 per cent. off current prices for list of speakers who have signified their ac-$2.50, being 50 per cent. off current prices for similar events, can be had of Mr. Burkhardt, at Dutton's, 31 West Twenty-third Street; Mr. Butler, at Brentano's, 5 Union Square, or from any other member of the committee.

OBITUARY NOTES.

GEORGE FRANZ HEDELER, the well-known publisher of the Export Journal, etc., died on April 1, at Leipzig, Saxony, aged fifty-three. Mr. Hedeler, in addition to his journal, an "international advertiser for the booktrade and book industries," printed in German, French and English, also conducted a commission book business, and published a directory of book collectors, an important work on international copyright laws—"Gesetze über das Urheberrecht in allen Ländern," prepared by Professor Ernst Röthlisberger, of Bonn, etc. Mr. Hedeler was an indefatigable worker, conscientious in every business detail and a loyal friend, who is sincerely mourned by all who knew him intimately or even remotely had business relations with him.

WILLIAM N. BARTHOLOMEW, the first teacher of drawing in the Boston public schools, died on April 9, at Newton Center, aged eighty-five. His work in the Boston schools began in 1851. In 1862 he was appointed to the circle high pointed teacher of drawing in the girls' high and normal schools; in 1868 he was made supervisor of drawing, and held that position until 1871, when he resigned to devote his attention to the publication of text books. His system of drawing was the first to be introduced into American public schools.

JAMES GILLET, at one time Bret Harte's mining partner and the original of that author's "Truthful James," died at his home in Sonora, Cal., last week. "Truthful James" tells one side of the story in "Her Letter," of which Houghton, Mifflin & Co. recently issued a beautiful edition, illustrated in color by Arthur I. Keller.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

F. MARION CRAWFORD returned to the United States on the 11th inst, by the Prinzessin Irene. This is his first visit in two years, and he will remain in this country about two months. Mr. Crawford has just completed, and will soon publish, a book dealing with the life of Beatrice Cenci.

WITH the publication of "Carmichael" a new woman writer makes her début. "Anison North" is the pseudonym of Miss May Wilson, a native of Grey County, Ontario. Although "Carmichael" is her first novel, Miss Wilson has done magazine and editorial work, and is at present in charge of the Home Department of a large Canadian magazine,

THE Smith Professorship at Harvard, which has been vacant since the death of Lowell, has at last been filled by the appointment of Professor J. D. M. Ford, author and editor of many works connected with the Spanish and Italian languages. Professor Ford's name is known wherever the Romance languages are studied, and this chair, which has been held Tickner, Longfellow and Lowell, will again have another distinguished occupant. Professor Ford is writing a volume on "The Novel" for Types of English Literature Series, which is appearing under the general editorship of Professor William Allan Neilson, the latest editor of Shakespeare's works.

THE house in the Piazza di Spagna, Rome, which has been purchased to be preserved henceforth as a memorial to Keats and Shelley, is about to be thoroughly overhauled. The floor inhabited by Keats is to be used as the nucleus of the memorial museum. Nelson Gay, of Boston, secretary of the local committee of the Keats-Shelley Association, has started a fund for the purchase of furniture for the house, which is to consist, among other things, of book shelves for the works of the two poets. H. W. Cannon, of New York, has presented a manuscript and some letters from Byron to the memorial collection, and other interesting contributions have been made. The mortgage of $8000 which existed at the time of the purchase of the house has been reduced to $4000.

WHEN Johann Caspar Schmidt went to the University of Göttingen his fellow-students according to the New York Times, jocosely called him Max Stirner, (Maximus Stirn,) because of his prodigiously high forehead.
The name clung to him. He signed it to his extraordinary book, "Der Einzige und sein Eigenthum," in which he set forth the doctrine of individualism the apparite of Science of Individualism the apparite of Individualism the Individuali trine of individualism, the opposite of Socialism, afterward so brilliantly represented in German and Norwegian literature by Nietzsche and Henrik Ibsen. Stirner's book was almost forgotten until 1898, when John Henry

Mackay published in German his painstaking account on Stirner's life and work. "Der Einzige und sein Eigenthum" has now been translated into English under the title of "The Ego and His Own," and is the subject of a striking article by James Huneker in the New York Times Saturday Review of Books of last week.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

ROBERT GRIER COOKE, INC., has just published a volume of poems entitled "The Hidden Places," by Alida C. Emmet.

Permission has been granted for a translation of "The Clansman," Thomas Dixon's great Reconstruction novel of the South, into Arabic.

W. G. COLESWORTHY, the well-known bookseller in Cornhill, Boston, is seriously ill, and his business is for sale. Both father and son have been in the book business at the same stand for nearly sixty years.

THE CONGREGATIONAL SUNDAY-SCHOOL AND PUBLISHING SOCIETY has held meetings several times since April I to examine into the irregularities reported in our issue for March 30, but nothing has as yet been made ready for publication.

THE complete manuscript of John Oxen-ham's story of "The Long Road" was deliv-ered into the printer's hands on March 4. The book was published the 13th, and by the 18th the entire edition was sold out. second edition was brought out last week.

THE HON. LIONEL WALTER ROTHSCHILD writes to the London Spectator that the cost of his forthcoming book on "Extinct Birds" has been grossly exaggerated. twenty thousand pounds it will not even cost a fourth of that sum to produce, and the actual printing of plates and text will only amount to two thousand one hundred pounds.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS will publish at once in their World's Classics series Goldsmith's "Poems," with introduction and notes by Austin Dobson; Hazlitt's "Lectures on the English Comic Writers," with introduction by R. Brimley Johnson; Carlyle's "French Revolution," in two volumes, with introduction by C. R. L. Fletcher; Palgrave's "Golden Treasury," with additional poems; and the fourth volume of Burke's Works.

THE success of the juvenile author, C. F. King, Jr., with his book, "A Boy's Vacation Abroad," has brought him what is probably the record, for one of his age, of literary wage. When he went to Boston for his Easter vacation from school his publishers presented him with a check for $750 as his first royalty. The book was published by the C. M. Clark Publishing Company at Christmas time, and since then 5000 copies of it have been sold.

Alfred de Musser's copyright expires in May, and the Société du Mercure de France will then publish, in its Collection des plus belles Pages, a selection of his best work. The same firm will also issue his "Correspondance," edited by Léon Séché, covering a period of thirty years, (from 1827 to 1857.) Of the 200 letters gathered, a good number have not yet been published. Others have been revised from the MSS. and parts which were suppressed have been restored.

B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just brought out a volume of detective stories by

M. F. Goron, ex-chief of the Paris detective police, entitled "The Truth About the Case." In this collection of descriptions of the actual adventures of one of the world's foremost criminal-takers the old adage, "truth is stranger than fiction" has fresh confirmation. They have in preparation for early publication a book explanatory of the card game of "Skat," by A. Elizabeth Wager-Smith, well known in "whist" circles of this country, who has endeavored to present this game, which is rather involved and difficult, in a clear and popular manner.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready General E. P. Alexander's "Military Memoirs of a Confederate," an important contribution to Civil War history written from a participant's standpoint; "The Pickwick Ladle, and Other Collectors' Stories," by Winfield Scott Moody, an account of the experiences of a young married couple as would-be collectors; also, new editions of Ivan Turgénieff's "Rudin," "A King Lear of the Steppes," "A Nobleman's Nest," "On the Eve" and "Fathers and Children." They will publish immediately "Short Cruises," by W. W. Jacobs, a new volume of humor by the author of "Odd Craft" and "Captains All," and Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews's new book, "The Militants," comprising stories of various kinds, by the author of "The Perfect Tribute."

Henry Holt & Co. expect to issue, within a few days of the close of the Peace Congress in New York City "As the Hague Ordains: Journal of a Russian Prisoner's Wife in Japan." The book gives a remarkably intimate inside view of persons and events in the late war, in fact so intimate a view that the author declines to reveal his identity. They will publish at once a text-book on "Physiography," by Professor Rolin D. Salisbury, of the University of Chicago, the joint author with Professor Chamberlin of a text-book on geology which is considered by many good judges one of the best works on the subject in English. Professor Salisbury's new book is unusually full and adequate, yet is written in a style so simple and attractive that it will appeal to the general reader as well as the student.

Moffat, Yard & Co. have in preparation a book entitled "Wild Animal Celebrities," by Miss Ellen Velvin, whose book, "Behind the Scenes with Wild Animals," was highly commended by John Burroughs, William T. Hornaday and other authorities on account of its unimpeachable truth; "The Stolen Throne," a story of plot, purpose and intense action softened with shrewd and delicate characterization, by Herbert Kaufman, a business man who has been extremely successful in a wide range of undertakings, and Mrs. May Isabel Fisk, a woman of temperament, imagination and personality, combined with insight and a genuine gift of humor; also, "The Events Man," by Richard Barry, a remarkable recital of true adventure, detailing the journalistic exploits of Stanley Washburn, in his highly successful efforts to secure the news for his paper, the Chicago Daily News, of the warring Russian and Japanese fleets and bring it to a neutral cable station.

JOHN LANE COMPANY, 110-114 West Thirtysecond Street, New York City, publish this week a detective story entitled "Dangerville Inheritance." The advance orders on this were so heavy that publication had to be postponed until a second edition could be printed. They have also ready this week "Napoleon's Conquest of Prussia, 1806," by F. Loraine Petre, with an introduction by Field Marshal Earl Roberts. Lord Roberts considers that Napoleon's overthrow of Prussian power was the punishment Prussia met for her selfishness and unpreparedness. Lord Roberts considers that "Mr. Petre has done his work well. He has consulted the best authorities for his facts, and he has visited and explored the theatre of war and the battlefields which he so graphically described. book, which is lucid in style and admirable in arrangement, gives a more complete and concise account of this epoch-making struggle than has yet appeared in English language. Its value is greatly enhanced by the admirable maps and plans which accompany and illumine

THE MERRYMOUNT PRESS, Boston, is bringing out in the Humanist's Library the "Against War" of Erasmus, edited by J. M. Mackail, Professor of Poetry at Oxford. It will be remembered that the books of this library are printed in "Monballegro" type, designed by Herbert P. Horne for the Merrymount Press, with title-pages and initial letters from his hand. The editions are limited to 303 copies, of which 275 are sold. Mr. Updike, of the Merrymount Press, is preparing a second edition of his grand-father's "History of the Episcopal Church in Narragansett, Rhode Island, Including a History of Other Episcopal Churches in the State." The editor, the Rev. Dr. Daniel Goodwin, has revised and enlarged the work, and has retained the original appendix containing the Rev. James MacSparren's "America Dissected," extremely rare in 1847, when the history was first printed. This appendix also contains a transcript of the Narragansett Parish Register from 1718 to 1774, copies of other old papers, and many genealogical and biographical notes.

A. M. Robertson, Van Ness Avenue and Pine Street, San Francisco, Cal., has just published a volume of "Selected Poems," by Edward Robeson Taylor. The printing of this book is amply justified. The unsold copies of "Visions, and Other Verse," and "Into the Light, and Other Verse," were destroyed in the great fire. The latter book was issued only a week before the fire, and the greater part was therefore lost. In addition to the selections from the two books referred to, there have been made numerous important additions of new matter never before printed, notably, nine additional stanzas to the leading poem, "Into the Light," (a poem of which more copies were sold and which attracted more attention and favorable comment than possibly any single thing in the way of verse since Markham's "Man with the Hoe;") six new sonnets on San Francisco, realizing the earthquake and fire in a most vivid and feeling way; and several miscellaneous pieces not hitherto published. The book may be said to fairly represent the best of Dr. Taylor's lifework in this field. There will be a regular edition and a large hand-made paper edition.

McClure, Phillips & Co. will publish on the 25th inst. "The Princess Virginia," by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, with illustrations by Leon Guipon, the advance sale of which has far exceeded that of any other Williamson book. They will bring out shortly a sumptuous and complete volume on "Dutch and Flemish Furniture," by Esther Singleton, a companion volume to her "French and English Furniture," published two years ago. The development of the craft in the Low Countries is most exhaustively treated. The volume will contain many reproductions of the original works of the great masters of design, and of authentic examples of Dutch and Flemish furniture. They have also nearly ready "Through Portugal," a story of a holiday outing, by Major Martin Hume, author of "Courtships of Queen Elizabeth," etc., who is known as an authority on Spanish and Portuguese history and as a helper of Froude in his historical work; also, a volume of poems by Wordsworth, selected, with a preface, by the famous English critic, Stopford A. Brooke, and illustrated by Edward H. New, who also supplies topographical notes explaining the association of the poet with the subjects chosen for the pictures. They announce for spring publication two volumes in a new series of illustrated cameos of litera-ture. The series is edited by George Brandes, who contributes an introduction, and the subjects of the initial issues are "Richard Wagner" as a poet and "Maxim Gorki." Each volume is fully illustrated. They will introduce a new novelist this spring, whose first book, to appear under the title of "The Artis-tic Temperament," has already made a great hit in London. The identity of the author is kept even from the publishers, the pen name "Jane Wardle" being used. The story deals with the lives of London painter folk.

AS THE HAGUE ORDAINS

Journal of a Russian Prisoner's Wife in Japan

Illustrated from photographs. $1.50 net; by mail, $1.62

A very human book by a woman of rare intelligence and sympathy; whose standing in Russia and Japan gives this work the interest of an "inside" history of the late war.

More appealing even than the history, is the very human picture drawn by a bright, observing, fearless woman whose heart is in her work, of the horrors, the grim humor, the pathetic and even romantic incidents of war.
